. I also have the Spanish version of ArcGIS 10.1 on my PC. Q: How do I get the value of child object property in parent object? I have an object { name: "purple", childs: { "red": { name: "red" }, "blue": { name: "blue" } } } I have a string 'name', and want to get the value of "red" or "blue". Is there an easy way to do this? I tried using "find()", but it just didn't work. A: Try var obj = { name: "purple", childs: { "red": { name: "red" }, "blue": { name: "blue" } } } var name = "red"; var arr = Object.keys(obj).map(function(key) { return obj[key].name; }); console.log(arr); Output: ["red"] If you want to get all the obj of each of the child, I would use forEach: var arr = []; Object.keys(obj).forEach(function(key) { var childArr = []; Object.keys(obj[key]).forEach(function(key2) { childArr.push(obj[key][key2].name); }); arr.push(childArr); }); console.log(arr); Output: ["red", "blue"] Our overall objective is to study the relationship between the metabolism of deoxyglucose and the activities of key enzymes involved in glucose metabolism in man. We plan to study the application of radioactive deoxyglucose for the assessment of malignancy and the use of deoxyglucose analogues 648931e174
